Internationally acclaimed teacher and musician Jeremy Cloake will be delivering the first ever n'goni course for New Zealand. This course is a rare opportunity to learn n'goni from a very skilled teacher.

This course will be taught at a holiday home at Piha beach. Participants will initially be taught how to tune n'goni, several tuning scales, disassembly and reassembly of n'goni and how to replace the strings. The course will then continue on with playing techniques, several rhythms and improvisations.

The course fee includes all tuition and the overnight stay on Saturday. Participants will be responsible for preparing their own food and we will share a meal on the Saturday night. This course is suited for beginner and intermediate students.

Several n'goni will be available for sale at a discounted price for students who attend this course. Jeremy's work can be seen and heard here:
